

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE SAINT LOUIS DIRECTORY for the year 1845, the first publication of the kind by the present compiler, (whether it shall prove the last or not,) is now offered to the public as the fruit of much labor and care. To render it as perfect as possible, every house in the city has been visited, where streets and avenues were traceable by means of index boards, or their names were satisfactorily ascertainable from tradition; and where the requisite information could not be obtained on the first call, many houses have been visited twice, thrice, or oftener, for that purpose. The names have been taken with all the care such an undertaking would permit; and every precaution has been taken to render this what a Directory ought to be—a full and correct general index to the localities of the entire population of the city.

As this is my first effort of the kind, it would be marvellous indeed if it did not prove defective to some extent, at least. When I embarked in this enterprise, I believed myself to possess as good an intuitive, or instinctive knowledge of the business of directory compiling as any other; but I soon discovered that I had much to learn, with no other instructor at hand than Experience. If, however, I had the same work to do again, with the knowledge I have already acquired, I doubt not but that such work would prove materially more perfect than the present. But, as I have a few other subjects to touch upon in the course of these introductory observations, I will here, and at once, discuss, explain, palliate, justify, and finally dispose of the imperfections of this, my humble, unpretending production, as briefly as possible, and then submit its fate to the ordeal of public opinion.

In the course of my passage through this city, I encountered a rabble of philosophers and wise men, who knew all, and a great deal more than all, about directory-making, but unfortunately for me, no two of them knew any thing alike; consequently, I was unable to compound, from their joint and aggregate knowledge, any thing like an infallible system. This was a source of great embarrassment, perplexity, disquietude and discouragement to me, insomuch, that on numerous occasions, and even after I had made considerable advance in the canvassing, I was tempted to abandon the work in despair of giving any thing like a reasonable public satisfaction. Most opportunely for my comfort and encouragement, however, I met with one man, who had visited all the principal cities of Great Britain, Continental Europe, and the United States, and consequently knew more than all the rest together, and he had NEVER YET SEEN a good Directory. This was "as water to a thirsty soul." Animation, before almost suspended, was now restored—my spirits revived—my energies returned—and I determined to persevere to the end; and if I must needs suffer immolation, impalement, tortures, racks and thumb-screws, and all that, I felt content to suffer in such company as the Longworths, the M'Elroys, the Cists, and other veteran directory compilers of our own country, who had once to learn as well as myself, and even yet have not been able to stop the mouths of the two-penny critics.

Two main ingredients enter into the composition of a perfect directory—the inclusion of all the names, and their location in their proper places of business or residence. As regards the latter, I believe there will be extremely small occasion for fault-finding furnished in the following pages.

With respect to the former, there are three ways in which it may be impossible to get all the names—first, by finding no person at home, to furnish the requisite information, nor any one adjacent to furnish the same satisfactorily: secondly, by removals from parts of the city over which I had not passed, to parts of the city over which I had passed: and, thirdly, by the squeamish withholdment of the name desired, on account of the indulgence of a morbid sense of mock-dignity on the part of the person applied to. I know there are a few names in this city which will not appear in this work, and to the above causes, exclusively, may their omissions be attributed. One evidence that there cannot be many names omitted, is the fact, that the following alphabetical list contains about eighteen hundred more names than there were votes polled in this city at the late presidential election, where, no doubt, all the legal voters of the city, and many from the county, voted, if not, withal, many who were not entitled to a vote.

As to those who have changed their places of business or residence since I took their names, and they have not furnished me with notice of such change, I hope they will be a little modest in censuring me for not making the necessary corrections, without such notice. I have made many corrections myself, where I knew such changes to have taken place.

The re-numbering of the city will now receive a moment's attention, as that, no doubt, will furnish grounds for charitable stricture by those who appear to have been sent into the world for no other purpose than to watch and govern its motions.

I commenced canvassing, for this work, on the 27th of May. Between that day and the first of June, I was informed that an ordinance had been passed for re-numbering the houses of the city. Upon inquiry, I also ascertained, officially, that the contract for doing the same had been entered into, and that the work was to be completed by the 6th of July. On the first of June, therefore, I suspended operations, intending to await the commencement of the numbering, and then to follow on after the numberers, as fast as they progressed. In this way, I waited till the 8th of July, which was after the time the numbering was to have been completed, and yet it was not then commenced!—the numbering not being commenced at the time it ought to have been completed: from such premises, I was utterly unable to make deduction when it would be commenced. This might be to-morrow; and then again it might not be until some time near “the latter Lammas,” that is to say—never. I accordingly recommenced canvassing, on the day above named, by taking down the locations of individuals and firms, in the manner exhibited in the following pages, which was the best that could have been adopted in the absence of numbers, and finished during the second week of September. I never learnt on what day the numbering was either commenced or completed, but my impression is, that the former was about the middle of August, and the latter about the middle of November. THIS I know, however, that Carr-street, on the north of Market, was numbered on the 5th, and Elm, on the south, on the 28th of October. If the streets on the south of, and parallel with Elm, were numbered afterwards, the work could not have been completed previous to the middle of November. This would have been rather long for me to have waited, for I could not have taken account of the last number until it had been put up—which was, probably, more than two months after I had finished canvassing; and, even after that, I would have had a considerable part of the city to have passed through, as the whole of the city is not numbered, and it was impossible for me to know where, on any particular street, the numbering would be discontinued, or what streets would not be numbered at all. I had, therefore, to pass along the principal streets, (Market, and the business part of the streets north of Market,) a second time, and took down the numbers which I have, being those of business stands, and of such residences as I knew the names of the occupants. This, together with the corrections thereby rendered necessary to the original entries, took from three to four weeks more of my time, so that, between the commencement and completion of my canvassing, I may be said to have lost at least two months of time, occasioned by the re-numbering. These facts I state, merely as defensory of myself; at the same time, disclaiming all, and every thing, savoring of censure upon the contractor, as I have understood, unofficially, that he had his time for completing the work extended once or oftener.

But where no numbers are herein expressed, the direction is invariably so definite and plain, as to lead the enquirer at once, if not to the very door, at least to within a very few doors, of the place desired to be found. A person residing, or doing business on a corner, the particular corner is always designated, by the abbreviations ne, se, nw, sw, that is, north-east, north-west, &c. And any person located between corners, is designated by the particular side of the street occupied, by the abbreviations es, ws, ns, ss, for east side, west side, &c.; and by the bearing of the location from the next street running cross-wise, as, “ns (north side) of Morgan, w (west) of Sixth." Thus, the corners being deducted from the front of a block, the length of front between the corners not being great, and the side of the street being defined, the enquirer arrives, without difficulty, at within a few doors of the one sought, and a single enquiry does the rest. The city of Cincinnati, now estimated to contain 90,000 inhabitants, has not a single door numbered within it; yet, in a less explicit form have directories of that city been annually made, and liberally patronized, for many years past. The directory for that city for 1843 contains no less than 345 business cards!

Something has been said about the length of time this publication has been forthcoming. Upon this point, I would briefly say, that the time I have unavoidably lost, from the causes already mentioned, has been about two months: had it not been for which, it would have been out about the 20th of October; and, considering that I lost about five weeks of this time at my very out-set, it may be considered that I did not actually begin until the 8th of July.

The preceding furnishes my explanation — apology — defence — justification, for the time occupied in the getting out of this book, and for the omission of a part of the numbers, and the unavoidability of that omission; and with the charitable, I trust it will prove sufficient, especially as but a part of the city is numbered after all. But, be the defects and imperfections of this work what they may, whether few or many, small or great, it will, nevertheless, be immensely useful, and will often be referred to by many who ought to purchase a copy, but who, to save the enormous sum of one hundred cents, will most honorably avail themselves of their neighbors' generosity!!

A Directory of Streets and Avenues herein contained, and for the first time published in a Directory of this city, will prove highly useful, not only to strangers, but to citizens also.

If a Directory is of any use, never did a city of thirty-five thousand inhabitants stand in greater need than St. Louis does at the present time. By an estimate, based upon an analysis of a part of the last Directory, and a comparison of the same with the corresponding part of this, at least one-third of the names of individuals and firms contained in the last are no longer here; a greater number take their places in the present Directory; and of those names which are contained in both, a very large proportion, perhaps fully one-half, have changed their locations since the last Directory was canvassed for, which was in the winter of 1841–42. Owing to the fluctuation of population, a Directory of this city ought to be made out at least every year, and then the names inserted ought to be confined to persons identified with the interest of the place, by a household or business tenure, as is the case in eastern cities. In getting up this Directory, I have, to an extent, and to a greater than I would again, adopted the last Directory as a precedent, by inserting the names of non-housekeepers and non-business proprietors; such as single clerks, journeymen, &c. Nearly all, in the last Directory, who are now absent, a of those classes; and all the use there is in inserting their names is, the enlargement of a book, at additional expense, and for no other purpose than to proclaim the fact, that, in times past, such persons have actually resided or sojourned in St. Louis. I mention this now, because it was my intention, when I embarked in this undertaking, to make its repetition a regular annual business, provided my present effort should render such general satisfaction as to afford me sufficient encouragement. Therefore, if I ever do undertake the publication of another Directory, I will confine the work solely to the names of persons in some sort anchored to the place by a household or business tenure.

It was my intention to have comprised within this publication a mass of local statistical matter, manufacturing, commercial, and miscellaneous, which, though not technically entering into the composition of such a work, might yet very properly be inserted therein; but the loss of time before mentioned has prevented me from doing this. The same cause has prevented me from procuring, by personal application to the proper persons, abstracts of the chartered and unchartered organized institutions, associations, and companies; such as Masons, Oddfellows, Military, Benevolent, &c. Some of them have been voluntarily furnished and inserted, but the rest are omitted through no fault of mine, as I have made several calls for them through the public prints. I propose to myself to furnish something of these kinds in the spring, in connection with a comprehensive BUSINESS DIRECTORY, at a cheap rate, accompanied by a map of the city, the most accurate, and the only accurate one that will then be extant; and until it shall appear, if it shall appear, there neither is, nor will be, any other such.

With respect to our local history — that having been already twice given, first by Mr. Keemle, up to 1838, and afterwards by Mr. Chambers, one of the publishers of the last Directory, up to 1842 — its repetition here would be utterly superfluous. Our subsequent history is the two or three years' history of the steady, noiseless, but rapid growth of an infant city, as to years, but of gigantic stature as to dimensions and enterprise. It is a trite saying, "that it is the country that makes the town?" — which signifies, that without a dense circumjacent country population, a town can never attain to any thing like distinction. The case of St. Louis, to a material extent, is an exception to this proverb. Saint Louis, it is true, is the great commercial mart of almost half a continent, (calling North America alone a continent,) but this half continent is, as yet, comparatively in a wilderness state. Without the advantages of a dense surrounding "country" population, St. Louis has augmented from a town of about 5,000 inhabitants in 1830, to a city of 35,000 in 1844 — an aggregate increase of 560 per cent. on the former population, in the short space of fourteen years. If such be the case, then, when the country does not, what is to be her destiny when the country shall, contribute its mite towards making the town? What is to be her destiny when Missouri and Illinois shall become to her (and which cannot be long hence) what Ohio and Kentucky are to Cincinnati?—or rather, what may we not expect to find her, when Missouri and Illinois shall contain their millions each, the present territories now tributary to her shall contain their millions, and the territories yet unorganized and unnamed, stretching from the western boundaries of Arkansas, Missouri, and Iowa, to the great Pacific, which will be equally tributary, shall contain their millions? Without presuming to prophecy, would it be preposterous to predict, taking the past and the present as data from which to calculate the future, that by the time “this generation shall pass away,” St. Louis will not be behind the then existing city of the third magnitude in the Union? Let me here, then, hazard the prediction, that before the lapse of time ordinarily allotted to one generation—about thirty-five years, (or up to 1880) St. Louis will be surpassed only by New York and New Orleans. In 1843, Cincinnati was estimated to contain 60,000 inhabitants, and that in 1850 it would reach 125,000. The natural advantages of Saint Louis far surpass those of Cincinnati. The scope of country dependant on Saint Louis far exceeds that dependant on Cincinnati, and in a brief period the extraneous population dependant on the former will exceed, manifold, that dependant on the latter. All that Saint Louis asks, by way of auxiliary—and it is what the whole West demands, and in time will have—is, the fostering care of a kindly general government, such as will give to all, navigable streams and good harbors.

In common with other cities, ours has come in for a share of the embarrassment and paralysis so universal throughout the whole length and breadth of our country, in its business operations, though not to so great an extent as in many, or most other cities; but she is now rapidly recovering her lost ground. The hum of business has revived—population and capital are pouring in upon us like a flood—manufacturing establishments are springing up in all directions, and the mechanical classes are extending their borders in a corresponding ratio; and as to the mechanical and manufacturing products of our city, they have taken the exclusive place of those of other distant manufacturing cities, to which we, and the country around us, used to look for supply. In short, the products of our mechanics and manufacturers, in effect, almost form a chevaux de frize across the Mississippi at the lower end of our wharf, with respect to the importation of distant manufactures. Steam-engineery, all sorts of machinery, carriages, agricultural implements, household furniture—in fact, all articles of luxury, comfort, convenience, and necessity, are now manufactured here in the most elegant and substantial manner, and in such abundance as to supply the demands of the city and country around, to an immense extent; insomuch, that this is no longer a place of consignment, as formerly, for the sale of the manufactures of other places, sent here to find a market, but a place of production, for the supply of other distant markets. Many mechanics who left the city during the late pressure have returned, declaring this to be the best place they could find. Before the publication of another Directory of this city, we ope to welcome the return of many more of those wanderers from us, and to renew a more durable acquaintance with them.

With respect to the mercantile business of this city, without speaking advisedly upon the subject, I would say, that from three-fourths to seven-eighths of the consumption of Missouri and Iowa, and those parts of Illinois and Wisconsin finding an outlet by the Mississippi, are furnished by our wholesale merchants; and of our commission and forwarding houses, it may be said, that they are either the purchasers of the staple commodities of the same vast region of country, or the factors through whose hands the same pass.

The private and public improvements of our city, put up or finished the present season, without knowing positively, I believe to exceed that of any previous season, although greatly impeded by the late unprecedented freshet in the Mississippi, by which nearly all the wood along our river coast, which furnishes our brickmakers, was carried off, and the sand used for building was so submerged, that, for a long time, there was none to be procured: nevertheless, among the public buildings put up this season, or finished which had been previously commenced, may be numbered — one Baptist, four Catholic, three Methodist and two Presbyterian churches, all of which, while they are spacious, comfortable, and substantial, possess the rare merit of having nothing gaudy about them. Under this head may be mentioned the completion of the previously unfinished part of the new Court-house, so far as it had been commenced. The north, south and west wings of that stately edifice are now completed, and present an appearance, both without and within, which, for arrangement, taste and execution, does honor to our architects and mechanics, and no less to our County Court for public spirit. The east wing, it is said, will be commenced at an early period; and the whole, when finished, will present an appearance which, as a public ornament, will hardly be surpassed by any thing of the kind in the West, even if in the East.

Among the products of private enterprise, in this city, are several of recent date, which, for magnitude, may be ranked among those of a public character; and, prominent among these, stand the two substantial and capacious brick Tobacco Warehouses of Col. JOSHUA B. BRANT. And we are gratified to know, that with Inspectors unsurpassed in professional knowledge, stern integrity, and a wide-extended celebrity, those warehouses are patronized to an extent commensurate with the public spirit of the proprietor, and the moral and professional worth of the officers connected therewith. Since their erection, the following inspections have been made at those warehouses:—415 hhds. in 1841; 1,750, in 1842; 6,847, in 1843, and 3,303 in 1844; showing a rapid annual increase until the present year, which has been cut short only by the failure of the crop of 1843. The average price of certain fifty hogsheads of tobacco, inspected and sold at those warehouses the present season, is $6 18 per hundred.

There are many other prominent establishments in this city no less deserving of notice here, but for want of the necessary information respecting which I am compelled to defer them for the present. Ample justice will be done them in my (at present contemplated) Business Directory of the city.

Our Water Works, which for many years furnished an ample supply of water for all domestic and manufacturing purposes, and which, at first, it was supposed would have sufficed for a much longer period than to the present time, have proven deficient. The reservoir is at present undergoing enlargement; but even now, when completed, can serve but a few years longer, when it must be cast aside, as insusceptible of farther enlargement. A new reservoir, therefore, must sooner or later be erected, on a different site; and, in the mean time, it might not prove to be the most preposterous act ever perpetrated, were our city legislature to order a reconnaissance of the country between this city and the Merrimac, to ascertain the practicability, and, if practicable, the expense, of procuring a supply of water from that river. This idea is suggested merely as "a word to the wise."

Like every other thrifty infant community, we, too, have our privations, among which, that of not having our streets lighted with gas is severely felt; but this desideratum we look forward to with confidence in the course of a very few years.

It is impossible for me even to allude to, much less to dwell at length upon, all the subjects of ordinary and extraordinary public moment, with respect to our city; but there is one of a rather melancholy character which I would here advert to as matter of general history, in which that of St. Louis is involved to a certain extent; and this I attempt, because no other, that I am aware of, has yet undertaken the same. I hope this attempt may operate as an incentive to some one more competent than I am, and whose information is more ample than mine is, to undertake and complete it. This is with reference to the recent flood.

In common with all the alluvian portion of the country watered by the Mississippi, the Missouri, and their tributaries, St. Louis has come in for a portion of the damage, though not of the devastation, occasioned by the late unprecedented freshet in those rivers. The extent of damage sustained along the entire length of those streams is above computation. The highest estimate might not approach within millions of dollars of the actual loss sustained by all the sufferers. The oldest inhabitant can recollect nothing of the kind comparable with it. The greatest previous freshet upon record, or of which any traces remain, presents a mere contrast, instead of a comparison. That was in 1785, which, according to existing land-marks and authentic records still in preservation, the recent freshet exceeded by about seven feet. This is ascertained by land-marks at St. Genevieve; and the records of the Catholic literary institution at Kaskaskia. Here, it covered the "American Bottom," in Illinois, opposite this city, fully to the above average depth; insomuch, that the Iola and New Haven steamboats plied regularly, daily, for weeks, between this city and "The Bluffs," in Illinois, at the eastern extremity of the "Bottom," a distance of eight miles from the river, and where the great mail from Louisville came in contact with the flood. Their business was, the conveyance of the mail, travelers, and people attending our market. We have heard of some, and doubt not that many human lives were lost; much live stock is known certainly to have been lost; and of household effects, and the remaining agricultural products of the previous season, it is equally well known that comparatively nothing was saved. One incident, of which we have heard as having occurred in the "American Bottom," is worthy of note. There is a knoll of rising ground in the "Bottom," to which, as the water rose, the stock of the neighborhood instinctively resorted for security. It was soon densely populated; and as the water rose higher and higher, and the solid terre firma disappeared beneath, this population became more and more dense, in consequence of the diminution of the space occupied by them. At length the knoll became so nearly covered that there was not room for all, and the smaller animals first, and afterwards the larger, were compelled to commit themselves "to the mercy of a rude stream," that bore them forever away from human sight.

In this distressing exigency, hundreds of families fled to this place, perfectly destitute, as to "a city of refuge." Here, all the comfort and relief was administered that could be, and our philanthropic and humane citizens appeared to vie with and emulate each other, as to who of them, who could, should do the most. The rich "cast in of their abundance," and the "poor widow her two mites;" and if the sufferers have not been restored to their previous condition, it is more attributable to the inadequacy of finite means, than to the lack of proper disposition.

I would that I could here do that honor to the meritorious, individually, which the mere mention of their names would confer; but that is impracticable, as I neither know all their names, nor would I have room for them if I did know them. The ladies, like those of old, of whom it is honorably recorded, were on this occasion, too, signally distinguished themselves by their incessant devotion to the cause of destitute and suffering humanity. But, while I cannot do justice to all, for the reason just mentioned, I feel imperiously called upon to make individual mention of the name of our worthy Mayor, Hon. BERNARD PRATTE, for the part he performed, both personally and officially, in ministering to the wants of the destitute: and our medical corps will never experience the pangs of remorse, or disturbed slumbers, on account of the many, and, in some cases, the long continued, gratuitous professional services rendered to the sufferers, from disease induced by anxiety, exposure, and privations.

The injury sustained by St. Louis, from this calamity, is more consequential than immediate. The loss sustained by damage and property flooded off was considerable, but the rout and discomfiture which the inhabitants of the lower part of the city sustained, was more serious, as being of circumstances less able to sustain them. Most of the inhabitants east of Carondelet-avenue were compelled to decamp; also, along Front street, the whole length of the city above Carondelet-avenue, and part of the south First and Second streets. These were driven from their houses, but, unlike the country people, they had the facilities at hand for saving their effects, and returning to their homes when the "waters were abated."

These may be considered as the immediate effects of the flood; the consequential consists in the check which it gave to business generally. Occurring in, and continuing throughout the most active business season of the year, (the month of June) the effect was, the rendering it a perfect blank page in the book of commercial transactions. Superadded to this, the circumstance of the carrying away by the flood of all the wood along our river coast, from which we were wont to procure supply for the burning of brick, and the submerging of the sand used for mortar, in building, have prevented the erection of, perhaps, hundreds of houses that otherwise would have been erected, and cut off employment from thousands of workmen that otherwise would have found employment.

The area of territory inundated above St. Louis, and of which St. Louis is the commercial metropolis, if compacted within one common boundary, would fall little short of that of one of our medium-sized States. The loss of personal property within the same, was of itself immense in value; but even this was comparatively trivial, when compared with that of the accumulated freehold improvement of years previous, which were also lost together with the entire present year's crop. All this was not only the immediate loss of the farmer, and of the country also, but consequently of the St. Louis merchant, as the purchaser, or agent, of the producer.

A monument, commemorative of this great public, semi-national calamity, has been erected at the city expense, in front of the Centre Market, with the height to which the water rose inscribed upon it. In the base of the column is deposited a manuscript document, written by Dr. C. PRES-TON, of this city, containing a detailed account, or journal, of the rise and fall of the river, and with which he has kindly favored me with a copy, which, with pleasure, I append to this article. It contains a mass of statistical matter, notices of institutions, of local improvements, public and private, and much other matter of public interest. I had prepared many notices, on the same subjects, for insertion herein; but as they are all included in the document furnished by Dr. P., the corresponding ones of my own compilation are consequently omitted.

The idea of saying a word with respect to the general health of this city, has been suggested by the accidentally getting hold of a late number of the "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," which contains an interesting article upon the subject of "Mortality among Children in St. Louis," condensed from a more voluminous article from the pen of Dr. V. J. Fourgeaud, of this city, and originally published in the "Saint Louis Medical and Surgical Journal." Without the consent or privity of Dr. F., I hereto append the Boston article also, as one of public interest. In addition thereto, I will only add, that such a thing as a local, or periodical epidemic, is unknown here, and that the general health of this city is not surpassed by that of any other of equal population in the east or north.

In conclusion: I would here call the attention of the reader to the map of the city of St. Louis, as it hangs upon the wall, and ask him if he ever beheld a model of the hull of a steamboat of much more perfect proportions, drawn by the hands of the architect, than that map presents. That map, the product of the joint action of nature and legislation, is the de facto miniature representation of a craft of stupendous dimensions,—no less than five miles in length, and proportionate depth of hold, and which is now in actual process of construction, in the county of St. Louis, and State of Missouri. The keel and stem-post, (or eastern and north-eastern boundary,) consisting of one continuous, connected piece of material, was got out, furnished on the ground, and placed upon the blocks, by Dame Nature herself; and are of such durable, imperishable, indestructible material, as to be considered by many to be of co-extensive duration with time itself, and to require no insurance. The stern-post and deck, (or southern and western boundaries,) were furnished, erected, and placed in their positions by "the multitude of counsellors" in legislature assembled, and are considered little, if any, more liable to dilapidation and decay, than the part furnished by Nature. The latter is, as yet, considered rather incomplete, in that it lacks a rudder in the south, and cabin, flue-pipes, masts and rigging on the west; but these can, and are to be supplied when the hull is completed. Beside a freight of incalculable, inconceivable amount, which the hold is capable of containing, the cabins and state-rooms, according to the plan, are calculated, when finished, for the comfortable accommodation of at least 500,000 cabin passengers, together with an abundant space for the accommodation of all the officers, firemen, seamen, deck-hands, and any number of deck passengers. The commencement of construction is of but recent date; but already no less than 35,000 workmen are employed upon the hull; and the contractors have advertised for more help, which is pouring in daily and hourly. At least ten times as many hands as are now employed—or 350,000, it is estimated, will actually be employed, all at the same time, before it is completed, which, from the present time, will be within one-third of the time the ark was building, which was a perfect child's toy in the comparison. When completed, it is destined to do a business commensurate with its vast dimensions and capacity; to traverse all seas, by proxy, from China, (by way of the Pacific) in the west, to the Levant in the east, and from the Arctic to the Antarctic Circles. But as no country could furnish fuel sufficient for the propulsion, by steam-power, of a craft of such huge dimensions, even if old Æolus himself could furnish blast enough to fill its sails, yet will she be full rigged, as if for sea, with enginery, masts, &c., but still lie at anchor in the port where she is now being constructed, and carry on her immense commerce by means of her hundreds of long-boats, yawls, jolly-boats, and tenders, which will navigate all the oceans, seas, gulfs, bays, friths, straits, rivers and estuaries of the vast globe, and bring and trans-ship to her, as she lies at anchor in port, of all the rich products and fabrics of all countries and climes. The intention of the proprietors of this vessel is, to render it the tunnel, the grand focus, through which most of the commerce carried on between all surrounding points shall pass. May their enterprise and public spirit be crowned with the most signal success! and of that success, with Father Paul, let every one say—" Esto perpetua."

I had almost forgot to mention, that this vessel has been already named, the

Finally, fellow workmen upon this immense steamboat—having finished the job upon it which I had contracted for, (to form the list of the crew and passengers, and note the respective avocations of each on board) I must take leave of absence for a season—at least, until I can ascertain how my performance is appreciated. If approved by you, I shall in due season apply for a similar job; but, if disapproved of, I will never trouble you again in this way. The best evidence of your approval will be in the manifestation of a spirit of competition and monopoly among yourselves, who, of you all, shall become possessed of a copy of this, my dedication of the result of my labors—which, as Alexander bequeathed his empire, so I dedicate, “TO THE MOST WORTHY;” and who are the most worthy, I leave to every man to judge for himself.

THE COMPILER.

SAINT LOUIS IN 1844.

THE city of Saint Louis is the commercial metropolis of the State of Missouri. It is situated on a limestone bluff, which rises abruptly from the west bank of the Mississippi river, about eighteen miles below its junction with the Missouri, one hundred and ninety miles from the mouth of the Ohio, and about twelve hundred miles from New Orleans.

From one to two hundred feet from the river, in an ordinary stage of water, just under the verge of the bluff, stores are built, presenting limestone fronts, from two to four stories in height, for a distance of a mile or more along the river, where most of the commission and forwarding business is done.

The river has a bold shore, so that steamboats of all sizes can moor close in, with their bows to the shore, to receive or discharge their cargoes.

There are from fifty to sixty steamboats to be counted here at almost any season of the year, destined either to New Orleans or up the Ohio; or to the Upper Mississippi, the Missouri, or Illinois rivers, and their tributaries.

Saint Louis may be considered the head of navigation on the Mississippi for large boats, as the numerous smaller ones from above tranship their freight here to the larger boats engaged in the lower trade, either to New Orleans, or to ports up the Ohio.

There are about one hundred steamboats enrolled here, besides which, there are at least one hundred and fifty enrolled elsewhere, that do their share of the carrying trade of the city, enhancing the number of tons to nearly fifty thousand. The capital invested in these boats cannot be much short of four hundred thousand dollars.

Ten years ago, and Saint Louis was a mere trading village, not exceeding seven thousand inhabitants. In 1837 it had increased to fourteen thousand, including the present limits of the city, which have been extended to embrace five miles along the river, and from one to two miles back. The city now contains about thirty-five thousand inhabitants, and is more rapidly increasing than any town of its dimensions in the Union.

The street along the levee, in front of the stores alluded to, on the river, is called Water, or Front-street; the next street to this is called First, or Main street, which extends about two miles along the river, where the principal wholesale dry-goods business is done: then follow the other parallel streets—Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, &c.

The streets which cross these at right angles, are named somewhat like those of Philadelphia, after the forest and fruit trees of the country. Market-street commences where the ferry boats land from Illinois, and divides the city about in the centre and is one of the avenues leading to the country.

The Episcopalians have three churches here, and Kemper college, situated about five miles west of the city, is under their supervision, to which is attached a medical department, and a building within the city where lectures are delivered during the winter.—There is an orphan asylum under the supervision of the females of this denomination.

The Presbyterians have six churches, including one Seceder, or Associate Reformed Presbyterian. The Baptists have two churches; the Methodists three; the German Lutherans one; the Dutch Reformed one; the Unitarians one; the people of color have one Methodist and one Baptist; the Disciples, or those familiarly known by the name of the Campbell Baptists, worship at present in the Lyceum; the Universalists have a society, but no building; the Protestants generally, have an orphan asylum, on Seventh-street, between Franklin-avenue and Morgan-street, which is under the supervision of an association of ladies.

The Catholics have six churches, including three now being built. The Saint Louis Cathedral, which was dedicated in the fall of 1834, is the oldest, and is situated on the corner of Walnut and Second streets.

The College of Jesuits have an University, called the "St. Louis," within the city, to which is attached a fine chapel recently built, called "Saint Francis Xavier." There is also a medical school attached to this University, making two contemporary schools within the city. There is also a free school for boys, under the supervision of this college.

The Sisters of Charity superintend a charity hospital, situated on the corner of Fourth and Spruce streets, the only hospital within the city; the City pays towards the support of this Hospital about ten thousand dollars annually, and about two thousand dollars is paid by the United States, with a privilege of sending a number of patients.

The order of the "Sacred Heart" have a convent in the south part of the city, to which is attached a female seminary.

On account of high water, the order of "Visitation" from Kaskaskia, have removed their female boarding-school to this city, of which there are two, one on Sixth-street, near Pine, and one in the late mansion of Mrs. Biddle, on Broadway.

The City have three free schools, and have in contemplation the establishment of a high school, and additional primary schools.

There are several select schools of high reputation, among which the "English and French Collegiate Institute," superintended by Professor and Mrs. Bonfils, 11 South Fourth; Mr. Wyman's "English and Classical High School," 25 North Fourth; Mr. Jones' "Commercial School," and Mr. Ligget's "Writing Academy," corner of Fourth and Chesnut, are deserving of special mention.

The Court-house occupies a whole square, bounded by Fourth, Fifth, Market and Chesnut streets, and is to be enclosed by iron palisades. The old house is giving way for the new one, now nearly completed, and when finished, will present the form of a Grecian cross, with projecting colonades on the four sides of entrance. The materials used in its construction, are bricks, and a light gray limestone quarried in the vicinity, which has the appearance of the Eastern granite. There is a rotunda in the centre, surmounted by a dome. The estimated cost, for the completion of the whole, by the architect, H. Singleton, Esq., is $230,000.

The Planters' House is on the square next north of the Court House, on Fourth-street, extending from Chesnut to Pine, 230 feet. It occupies half the depth of the square from Fourth to Fifth streets. It is a fine brick building, erected by a company, at an expense of about two hundred thousand dollars; is five stories high, including the basement, and contains two hundred and thirty rooms. It is kept by Mr. Benjamin Stickney, and is esteemed one of the best hotels in the Western country.

There are many hotels and public houses within the city, the bare mention of which by name would extend this brief sketch far beyond its prescribed limits.

There are two tobacco-warehouses on the corner of Washington-avenue and Second-street, which cost about twenty-thousand dollars, exclusive of the ground: one is two stories high, one hundred and seven feet six inches, by one hundred and thirty-seven feet; the other is ninety-six by one hundred and eleven feet, and three stories in height. These are the private property of JOSHUA B. BRANT, Esq., to whose individual enterprise the planters, as well as the citizens, are indebted for this indispensable accommodation in the business part of the city.

The State subsequently built a tobacco-warehouse on the corner of Washington-avenue and Sixth-street, on a lot one hundred and fifty feet square; the building is three stories high, and one hundred and fifty by one hundred and thirty feet, and cost, including the lot, twenty-five thousand dollars.

William Waddingham, Esq., has erected a hemp-warehouse, on Main-street, between Cherry and Wash streets; the building is of brick, three stories high, one hundred and twenty-four by one hundred and twelve feet. The cost of this building was between nine and ten thousand dollars, exclusive of the ground: it is rented by G. W. Jenks, Esq.

Chouteau's Pond, is a beautiful sheet of fresh water, supported by a small rivulet, on which there is a paper-mill, and by springs from the bottom and margin; the lower part of this pond is in the central part of the city, at the junction of Market and Ninth streets, and it extends south and west, and then north to Market-street again, forming part of a circle, or a half moon, of about two miles in extent, averaging a quarter of a mile in breadth.

The outlet of this pond is on the east side, where it propels a flouring-mill, except in extremely dry weather. This fairy lake affords sport for the angler, as well as for the oarsmen of the Ripple and other boat-clubs.

On the southern limits of the city, three miles from Market-street, is the United States Arsenal; three miles further down the river, is the ancient French village of Carondelet; and four miles further is the Jefferson Barracks, the head quarters of the Western army, being ten miles below the city of St. Louis.

There are in this State the villages of Florissant, Manchester, and St. Charles; and in the State of Illinois opposite, Illinois Town, Brooklyn, Belleville, Cahokia, and Alton, none of which exceed a distance of twenty-five miles from St. Louis.

The staple of this region, shipped to and from this city, are tobacco, hemp, wheat, and other grain; flour, beef, pork, hides, furs, peltries, live-stock, lead, &c.; and it will not be long before iron may be added, as the ore of the Merrimack cannot be surpassed, to say nothing of the Iron Mountain.

The American Fur Company, located here, employ a capital of over half a million of dollars, and give employment to several hundred persons.

There is good bituminous coal here and on the Illinois side of the river, within from five to ten miles from the city. The price varies from six to fifteen cents per bushel.

There are two steam-ferry companies, with two boats each, constantly plying between this and Illinois Town. There is also one boat running from the upper part of the city to Brooklyn.

In the north part of the city there are two tumuli, or mounds, on the lower one of which the city has constructed a reservoir, into which water is raised by steam power from the river, and from thence conducted by iron pipes to the consumer.

On the Upper Mound, Messrs. Vandewenter and Field have built a pavilion, for a pleasure resort. This mound is situated on Broadway, near the river, about one mile and a quarter from the Court-house. It is of an oblong shape, and about fifty feet higher than the street which runs along its base; and about eighty or ninety feet above the river at this time, (November 30th, 1844.)

The pavilion is a wooden building, 80 feet long and two stories high, from the top of which there is a magnificent view up and down the river, and over a portion of the city.

Flour, white-lead, red-lead, linseed oil, lard oil, castor oil, &c., are manufactured here, and the business of iron casting, sugar refining, tanning, stone cutting, boat building and repairing, brick making, sawing of lumber, planing, &c., are carried on here to a considerable extent; and in fine, the handiwork of the artizan is seen in almost every branch, adequate to the wants of the city, for either use or ornament.

There is a cotton factory in progress in the rear of the store on the north-east corner of Chesnut and First streets, by Messrs. Meier & Co.

There are, for the repairing of vessels and steamboats, one inclined way, and one floating dock.

There are about fourteen flouring mills, propelled by steam-power.

There are about twelve steam saw mills located along the river, within the city limits.

There are six breweries, two planing machines, one hemp, cotton bagging, and rope factory, two white lead factories, &c.

There are seven daily papers, the Republican, the New Era, Missourian, Reporter, Evening Gazette, Reveille, People's Organ, and the Saint Louis American, the latter advocating the principles of the American party. There are eleven weeklies, three tri-weeklies, and one semi-monthly.

There are two packing establishments, one in the south part of the city, on Second-street, by Mr. Risley, who slaughtered, last year, 614 beeves and 6500 hogs; the other is in the north part of the city, on Broadway, corner of Wash-street, by Messrs. Sigersons, who slaughtered, and packed, last year, 800 beeves and 13000 hogs.

The city is divided into six wards, and is governed by a mayor and two boards of councilmen, chosen annually and biennially, called the Boards of Aldermen and Delegates.

The present mayor, is the Hon. BERNARD PRATTE.

There is a Lyceum, with a good library, in rooms on the corner of Pine and Third streets.

The Mechanics' Institute have a lecture room, on Third street, between Market and Chesnut streets.

The apprentices are preparing a reading, or lecture room, under the Unitarian Church, on the corner of Pine and Fourth streets: a highly commendable enterprise.

This year will long be remembered, for the unusual rise of water in the Mississippi and its tributaries, occasioned by repeated heavy rains at the north and west: so remarkable has this rise been, that it will form an epoch of reference for future generations and historians of this great valley; and may it be long before they have its parallel to record!

After the usual spring rise in the river, which was higher than it had been since the great rise of 1826; on the 11th of June, the river had fallen about four feet, and on the 12th it commenced again to rise from six to ten inches in twenty-four hours, and continued about the same ratio on the 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th of June, and on the 17th it had attained a height of six inches above the late spring rise.

On the 18th, it rose 2 inches	On the 22d, it rose 7 inches
“ 19th, — 9 “	“ 23d, — 14½ “
“ 20th, — 10 “	“ 24th, — 11 “
“ 21st, — 15 “	“ 25th, — 4 “

on the 26th, 2 inches, and came to a stand this day, at 6 o'clock, P.M.: on the 27th, it remained stationary until 7 o'clock, P.M., entirely submerging the first stories of the buildings on the Levee, or Water-street, attaining a height, as will be seen by the inscription on the Monument, of 38 ft. 1 in. above low water mark, and 7 ft. 7 in. above the city grade. On the 28th, the water began gradually to recede, and had fallen, the first twenty-four hours, four and a half inches:

On the 29th, it fell 6½ inches	On the 7th, it fell 4 inches
“ 30th, — 9½ “	“ 8th, — 2 “
July 1st, — 11 “	“ 9th, it rose again 1 inch
“ 2d, — 10 “	“ 10th, it fell again 1½ “
“ 3d, — 9½ “	“ 11th, — 1½ “
“ 4th, — 9 “	“ 12th, — 3 “
“ 5th, — 7½ “	“ 13th, — 3 “
“ 6th, — 7 “

and at this date (14th of July) it had just left the first floor of the stores on the Levee, and continued to fall gradually until the latter part of August, or 1st of September.

The citizens have erected a Monument on a line with the curb-stone on Water-street, opposite the centre of the east front of the Market-house, to commemorate this deplorable visitation, on which is the following inscription:—

“ HIGH WATER,
JUNE 27, 1844.

7 FEET 7 INCHES
ABOVE
THE CITY DIRECTRIX.

38 FEET 11 INCH
LOW WATER MARK.”

This Monument is a plain obelisk, of limestone, 16 ft. in height, set in a pedestal of the same material, about 4 ft. square, and 3 ft. thick. It was designed by the city engineer, Mr. Kayser, and wrought by Mr. — Wood, stone-cutter.

There have been between five and six hundred good substantial brick buildings built here this year, and there would have been a larger number had not the high water cut off the means of procuring sand, which suspended building operations for two months at least: besides these, there are many smaller buildings and shanties, not included in this estimate.

There are from forty to fifty millions of brick made here annually, and put into buildings here and in the vicinity.

The extent of this valley, of which this city is destined to be the interior metropolis, is from north to south about twelve degrees, by ten east and west, and embraces an area of five hundred and thirty-two thousand square miles, with fifteen thousand miles of steamboat navigation.

The Mississippi river is navigable from the gulf of Mexico to the falls of St. Anthony, a distance of twenty-two hundred miles.

The trade of this city, connected with the mining districts, the fur trade, the trade with Mexico by way of Santa Fe, added to the increasing agricultural trade of this State, of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa, will guarantee to St. Louis, dimensions, prosperity, and ultimate wealth, second only to New Orleans in this immense valley, watered by its Father of waters and tributaries, dotted by its hundred cities, destined shortly to be peopled by untold millions.

MORTALITY AMONG CHILDREN IN ST. LOUIS.

BY VICTOR J. FOURGEAUD, OF ST. LOUIS.

[Population of St. Louis in 1841, 30,000. Latitude, 38 deg., 37 min., 28. sec. Longitude, 90 deg., 15 min., 39 sec. west of Greenwich.]

In the year 1841 there were 935 deaths in the city of Saint Louis—447 of which were persons over 7 years of age; and 488 were children under 7 years of age.

The mortality among children under 7 years of age was greater than among persons over that age; the difference being 41 in favor of the latter. The ratio of mortality among children, in proportion to the whole population, was as 1 to 61. The month of July was the most fatal, both to children and adults.

In the year 1842, there were 658 deaths—388 of which were persons over 7 years; and 270 were children under 7.

This year was peculiarly favorable, especially to children; only 270 having died, being 218 less than in 1841, and 375 less than in 1843. The whole number of deaths was 658; 277 less than in 1841, and 481 less than in 1843. This was a very moderate mortality for a city having at least 30,000 inhabitants.

The ratio of mortality among children, in proportion to the whole population, was as 1 to 111.

In the year 1843, there were 1139 deaths—494 of which were persons over 7 years; and 645 were children under 7.

This shows a great increase of mortality, especially among children; 645 having died, making the aggregate number of deaths among them amount to 151 over that of all other persons over 7 years of age. July, August, September and October were peculiarly unfavorable to infants; no less than 477 having died during these four months. August, particularly, seemed to have been the most fatal for them; 209 having died in that month. The ratio of mortality among them, in proportion to the whole population, was as 1 to 46.

Thus, there were 1403 deaths among children under 7 years of age in the course of the last three years. The number of fatal cases among persons over that age amounts to 1329, being 74 less than among children. The whole mortality in St. Louis for that period amounts to 2732, including adults and children.

Thus the average mortality of this place rates at 910 $\frac{2}{3}$  per annum, or as 1 to 33.

The four first months of the year were most favorable to children, April especially, only 25 having died in this month during the three years. July, August, September and October were the most unfavorable, especially July and August, 313 having died in the former, and 322 in the latter month, in three years.

During these three years, the diseases most fatal to children were, cholera infantum (238) and convulsions (147: total, 385).

The whole number of deaths among children being 1403, if we deduct from this number 297 cases reported as unknown, we will have 1106 known cases; and we will perceive that these two maladies alone (cholera infantum and convulsions) have carried to the grave more than one-third of the whole number of children whose diseases were recorded.

Respecting convulsions, we deem it only necessary to remind the reader, that generally they are but a symptom of other diseases, such, for instance, as encephalitis, meningitis, &c.; they are often sympathetic, and produced by affections distinct from those of the nervous centres, as dentition, worms, &c.; lastly, they may be essential or idiopathic; but these cases are said, by our most distinguished pathologists, to be of rare occurrence. We earnestly call the attention of the profession to this subject, and entreat them to abandon the vague term, "convulsions," when it denotes but a symptom, and call diseases by their proper names. We urge this because, as we have already said, they are a symptom attendant on different diseases, which it would be dangerous to confound. We should err in believing that during the last three years 147 children have died of "convulsions, essential or idiopathic;" we can only conclude, that during that time 147 have been the victims of different diseases, having convulsions for a symptom.

Of the 238 children who died of cholera infantum, the number of males far exceeds that of females. With one solitary exception, this was invariably the case during the summer months of the three years recorded. We know not whether this fact is of general occurrence, or whether it has been before remarked by any author. We respectfully request the physicians of other cities to examine and decide the matter. Opposed as we are to hypotheses, which has so often misled our science, and knowing no good reasons by which to account for this disproportion, so uniform in the statistics of this place for the last three years, we merely call attention to the fact, and refrain from all speculative explanations.

The deaths from cholera infantum average in Philadelphia 232 for each year; population, 200,000. In Washington, 44; population, 18,000. In St. Louis, 79, population, 30,000.

Thus, in Philadelphia, there is 1 death from cholera infantum for every 862 inhabitants; in Washington, 1 do., 411 do.; in St. Louis, 1 do., 375 do.

Thus, we see that, in other places as well as this, the disease often baffles the most skilful physicians. It is true, that the mortality occasioned by this bane of infancy, during the past year in St. Louis, was most alarming—amounting to 238, which was in the ratio of 1 in every 126 inhabitants. But the cause of this I sincerely believe to be the want of proper medical attendance. I neither desire nor intend to insinuate aught against my fellow practitioners; on the contrary, our city has reason to be proud of her physicians. It is not to them, nor to their mal-practice, that this great mortality must be attributed. Mothers! it is because you neglect to seek their aid: it is because you do not employ, or employ them too late, that so many of your offspring are torn from your embraces. Every boat brings us a multitude of poor families unable to see a physician. True, no man deserving that title, and the respect due to it, would refuse his advice and attendance, because a suffering being could not show the price of the consultation.

Often money cannot pay the physician. His reward—the greatest, the noblest, is in his heart—in his conscience. A philanthropic institution has been established in this city—an institution consecrated to the poor—the dispensary: but either they know it not, or neglect to avail themselves of its aid. Old nurses and charlatans are resorted to; substances injurious, perhaps poisonous, for the infant invalid, are administered in repeated doses, and the poor baby dies, less the victim of disease, than of unwise remedies employed for its relief.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

There are nine Public Schools, supported by a fund arising from lots of ground within the city of Saint Louis, granted by Congress for the support of public instruction. This fund, as well as the schools, is managed by a Board of President and Directors, consisting of two members chosen by the people, from each ward of the city. The following are the names of the teachers of the several schools, and the average number of scholars in each, respectively.

These Schools are all free, in a flourishing condition, and under the control of able and well qualified instructors.

KEMPER COLLEGE.

This Institution is situated on a commanding eminence, about five miles from Saint Louis, and is surrounded in all directions by a landscape, which, for extent and beauty of scenery, has scarcely an equal in the Western country. The location has been selected with great judgment, as well as taste; being sufficiently near to the city to enjoy all of its advantages, and yet sufficiently remote to avoid the evils incident to a large and rising metropolis. The principal buildings, which are of brick, consist of a main edifice, seventy feet long and four stories high, with which are connected two wings, of equal length, and three stories in height; thus affording ample room and every convenience for the various purposes of the Institution. The libraries, accessible to the various students, contain about four thousand volumes; and a cabinet of valuable specimens, to illustrate the natural sciences, enables the student in that department to do full justice to the various topics which he discusses.

It is the great design of this foundation, to combine a high standard of general education with domestic discipline, and systematic religious superintendence. While the course of studies embraces all the branches of the most finished English, classical, and mathematical education, the internal arrangements are essentially those of a well-ordered Christian family, in which strict attention is paid to the habits and manners of the students, as well as to their moral and intellectual culture. Particular prominence will be given to the department of modern languages, and every possible facility afforded to those who are preparing for Holy Orders. The religious principles of the Institution are a strict adherence to the doctrines and worship of the Protestant Episcopal church; but members of all Christian denominations are cheerfully received, and are only required, in connection with their fellow students, to attend the celebration of the public duties of religion.

The annual session of the College commences on the first Monday of October, and ends, at Commencement, on the last Thursday of July. The public examinations of all the classes begin on the Monday immediately preceding Commencement, and continue three days. It will be seen that there is but one vacation in the year, which embraces the months of August and September. The usual academic degrees are conferred at the annual Commencement, upon such students as are found qualified to receive them; and literary merit is encouraged and distinguished by appropriate and significant honors.

The terms of this Institution are one hundred and fifty dollars per annum, payable, in all cases, semi-annually, in advance. This sum includes, not only board and tuition, but also fuel, lights, use of beds and furniture, attendance of servants; together with the necessary quantity of washing and mending. It is worthy of special observation, that there are no extra charges, with the exception of a small additional pension for lessons in the modern languages, and for the exclusive use of private rooms. Candidates for Holy Orders, the sons of clergymen, and Indian youths, pay only one hundred dollars per annum.

Visits to the Institution are particularly invited by the Faculty, and will be agreeable at all times except Sundays. The most minute information can be readily obtained by application to any member of the Board of Trustees, or the College Faculty.

MILITARY AND FIRE COMPANIES.

There are seven Military, and as many Fire companies in this city. The names of the officers of four of the former, and of two of the latter, have been furnished for insertion; but, lest they might be mistaken, by strangers, as all of each that there were in the place, I have concluded to insert none of them. As their insertion is a matter that concerns the companies themselves, or their officers, a trifle more than it does the balance of the world, their omission is wholly attributable to themselves, or rather, to the remissness or indifference of the secretaries of those companies who furnished no statement, and by which I am subjected to the necessity of apologizing to those who did furnish statements, or abstracts.

CITY AND WARD BOUNDARIES.

By the present charter, all that district of country contained within the following limits constitutes the city of Saint Louis, to wit:—“Beginning at a point in the middle of the main channel of the Mississippi river, due east of the south-east corner of Saint George, in Saint Louis County; thence due west to the west line of Second Carondelet Avenue; thence north with said west line of said Avenue to the north line of Choteau Avenue; thence northwardly in a direct line to the mouth of Stoney Creek; thence due east to the middle of the channel of the Mississippi river; thence southwardly with the middle of the main channel of the Mississippi river to the place of beginning.”

The above described “district of country” is divided into six wards, respectively bounded as follows:—

FIRST WARD.—All that part of the city lying south of a line beginning on the Mississippi river at the foot of Cedar-street; thence running westwardly along Cedar to Fourth; northwardly along Fourth to Cerre; westwardly along Cerre to Twelfth; northwardly along Twelfth to Randolph; thence westwardly along Randolph-street to the western line of the city.

SECOND WARD.—All the territory lying north of the First Ward, and south of a line beginning on the Mississippi at the foot of Walnut-street; running westwardly along Walnut to Seventh; northwardly along Seventh to Market; and westwardly along Market to the western line of the city, constitutes the Second Ward.

THIRD WARD.—All the territory lying north of the Second Ward, and south of a line commencing on the Mississippi at the foot of Locust; running westward along Locust to Third; south along Third to Olive; and westwardly along Olive to the city line, constitutes the Third Ward.

FOURTH WARD.—The territory lying north of the Third Ward, and south of a line commencing on the Mississippi river at the foot of Green-street; running westwardly along Green to Eighth; north along Eighth to Morgan; and westwardly along Morgan to the city limits, constitutes the Fourth Ward.

FIFTH WARD.—The territory lying north of the Fourth Ward, and south of a line beginning on the Mississippi at the foot of Cherry-street; running westwardly along Cherry to Broadway; northwardly along Broadway to Wash; and westwardly along Wash to the western boundary of the city, constitutes the Fifth Ward.

SIXTH WARD.—All the territory within the city limits, lying north of the north boundary line of the Fifth Ward, constitutes the Sixth Ward.

In all cases, the centres of the several streets above named are the dividing lines between the several wards.

SAINT LOUIS DIRECTORY.

ABBREVIATIONS.

Av, avenue; al, alley; bt, between; cor, corner; dw, dwelling; e, east; es, east side; n, north; ns, north side; nw, north-west; s, south; se, south-east; ss, south side; sw, south-west; w, west; ws, west side; ups, upstairs; wh, wholesale; [c.], for colored persons.

Several professions will occasionally be found abbreviated, for the purpose of avoiding the doubling of a line; such as lbr, for laborer; cab-mkr, for cabinet maker; blksmith, for blacksmith; carp, for carpenter; brkmkr, for brickmaker; &c., &c.; but the profession intended to be represented by the abbreviation will be so obvious as hardly to require elucidation.

NOTE.—In the following, the directions are, for the most part, brief, plain, intelligible, and to the point. I have striven to obtain the proper spelling of names; and in searching for a name, the inquirer ought to know its proper spelling. A person, for instance, looking for Commons, ought not to look among the Cummins's; for Neilson, among the Nelson's; for Macdonough, or Mackoy, among the McDonoughs and McCoys; for Walsh among the Welch's and Welsh's, and vice versa, and scores, or hundreds, of other like cases of synonymes as to mere sound.

The cause of censure, in a large majority of cases, is attributable solely to the want of a knowledge of the correct spelling of the name sought for; therefore, you must know how to spell the name, else censure not if you do not find it; mind this, in part, as you go along.

Observe, that the letters I and J, U and V, are not interchangeably arranged, but I and U take precedence of J and V.

DANIEL DAVIES,

LETTER-PRESS PRINTER,

76 MAIN STREET,

Above the banking-house of Clark & Brothers, (Second Story,)

ENTRANCE ON OLIVE-STREET,

SAINT LOUIS,

With feelings of gratitude for the liberal extension of patronage he has received during the brief period of his residence in St. Louis, is desirous of assuring his friends and the rapidly-growing community of this city, that any work entrusted to him will be executed with neatness and punctuality, and on terms as satisfactory as can be obtained at any other office in the city.

In the BOOK AND PAMPHLET PRINTING, to which he is devoting the principal portion of his attention, D. D. would take the liberty to remark, that an experience of thirty years in the business, a great proportion of which time has been spent in the best offices of New Orleans, New York, and London, warrants him in asserting, that the strictest ACCURACY may be relied on in all work with which he may be favored, as the whole of the "practical" part of the business will be under his own superintendence.

JOSEPH FEARON,

Dealer in ALE and PORTER at Wholesale and Retail,

42 GREEN STREET, AND 161 NORTH SECOND,

ST. LOUIS, MO.,

Respectfully apprises his friends and the public, that he will constantly keep on hand a full supply of the best

ALE AND PORTER FROM THE FULTON BREWERY of this city, in addition to a variety of others, which he will be happy to furnish, either by the barrel, half-barrel or quarters, or in bottles, at any part of the city or suburbs.

At 161 NORTH SECOND-STREET can be obtained on draught a glass of the best Ale in the city, and, with the accommodation of an excellent Reading-room, J. F. flatters himself that he will obtain a continuation of that patronage which he is proud to be able to have the pleasure of acknowledging.

N. B. Country and steamboat orders promptly attended to.

JONATHAN JONES'
COMMERCIAL SCHOOL,

Corner of Fourth and Chesnut Streets,

ST. LOUIS, MO.

This Institution, for the last four years, has been devoted to the instruction of Gentlemen in upon principles practically adapted to business purposes, the pupil being conducted through the bona fide operations of the Counting-house without the use of a Text-Book or Lecture.

N. B. The ability of each pupil to discharge the duties of an Accountant, in charge of the most complicated books, or to sustain an examination before a committee of accountants of his own choosing, in every case, is guaranteed.

Tuition Fees, in no case, is demanded in advance; and the pupil has the reserved right of reviewing, during life, free of charge.

Reference given to pupils in charge of books.

STEAMBOAT BOOKKEEPING.

Special attention given to those wishing instruction in Steamboat Bookkeeping, and just as practical a knowledge guaranteed as can be obtained on any boat.

☞ Complicated entries adjusted, and counsel given in the opening and closing of Books, either at the room, or place of business.

C. M. LIGGET'S
WRITING ACADEMY,

In connection with this School, affords facilities never before equalled in this city, to impart a plain, free and bold business hand; at the same time, all the varieties of Ornamental and Fancy hands, with that chaste, beautiful Art of STYLOGRAPHIC CARD-MARKING, executed in a style not improved in any similar Institution.

C. M. LICGET'S WRITING ACADEMY,

Corner of Fourth and Chesnut Streets,

ST. LOUIS, MO.

This Institution imparts instruction upon principles entirely peculiar to itself. While the pupil obtains a free, bold, and legible hand, (as can be shown by 200 specimens of citizens known in this place), he receives a free and natural use of his arm, wrist and fingers. Thus, while it retains all that is useful in other systems, it secures to the pupil a PRACTICAL, BEAUTIFUL, REGULAR SYSTEM OF PENMANSHIP, as the result of motion and symmetrical form, instead of exclusive muscular motion. The old plan remains, proportionate to the impression made on the mind, (hence so many scrawlers and scribblers), while this remains commensurate with the natural use of those members of the body designed by Nature to be exercised in Penmanship.

ALL THE FANCY HANDS,
GERMAN AND OLD ENGLISH TEXTS,

And Flourishing,

TAUGHT ON THE MOST REASONABLE TERMS.

PLAIN AND ORNAMENTAL

Visiting & Cotillion Stylographic Cards,

EXECUTED AT THE SHORTEST NOTICE, IN A STYLE EQUAL TO THE MOST SPLENDID ENGRAVING.

Instruction given on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday Evenings, from 7 to 9 o'clock.

N. B. Private Instruction given to Ladies at their Residences.

DOUBLE-ENTRY BOOKKEEPING,
AND
COMMERCIAL CALCULATIONS,
TAUGHT, WITHOUT TEXT-BOOK OR LECTURE.

The pupil being taken through the operations of the counting-house, finds no difficulty in taking charge of the most complicated books.

Reference given to those who never made a journal entry until they came to this School, who are now in charge of some of the most important books in the city.

JOHN D. MCMURRAY.

JAMES M. DORMAN.

ST. LOUIS IRON RAILING MANUFACTORY,

No. 7 Second-street,

(NEAR THE CORNER OF MARKET AND SECOND),

ST. LOUIS, MO.

MCMURRAY & DORMAN

Continue to manufacture, at the above Establishment, all kinds of Plain and Ornamental Iron Railing, Balconys, Bank and Jail Doors, Book Safes, Fire-proof Vaults, Iron Window Shutters, Iron Awnings, Lightning Rods, Bedsteads, Gratings, and, in fact, anything which can be formed of iron.

Being both practical mechanics, in every branch of their business, together with the facilities they are possessed of, and their unremitting attention to business, McM. & D. flatter themselves they are prepared to work as well and as cheap as any other establishment in this country.

☞ All orders from city or country punctually attended to.

ROOT BEER, MEAD & PORTER,

MANUFACTURED BY

S. D. SMITH & CO.,

AT THE

Corner of Washington Avenue and Seventh-st.,

One Square West of State Tobacco Warehouse.

☞ This most delightful and healthy beverage, for its medicinal properties, cannot be excelled by any preparation of a similar nature. It acts as and has the most beneficial effects on the health of the consumer; it slakes the thirst without creating any excitement, and is as agreeable to the palate as it is to the system.

PROFESSOR & MRS. BONFILS'
English & French Collegiate Institute

For Young Ladies,

No. 11 SOUTH FOURTH STREET,

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

The PLAN on which this Institute is established in St. Louis, is similar to that which has been so highly approved in Washington City and Boston, and which secured to Professor and Mrs. Bonfils the patronage of distinguished individuals and foreign legations. It is select and limited, and designed for young ladies intended to be privately, carefully, and liberally educated.

The following features will give an idea of the general character of the Institute:

1. A system of Education which holds the moral training paramount to the intellectual.
2. A course of Instruction, regular, graduated, and analogous to that of colleges; modified, however, and adapted to the peculiar duties of the sex.
3. A union of the French, Italian, and Spanish Languages, in their various branches of literature and classics, with a finished English education.
4. A mode of Teaching, analytical, simple, and relative to the age and character of the different individuals.

“ We BIND and preserve the knowledge of past ages,
For the benefit of future generations.”

We are pleased to inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of St. Louis, and this Western section in general, that we have established ourselves in this city, and are prepared to do all kinds of work in our line at reduced prices.

We have supplied ourselves with a new and full set of Fancy Finishing Tools, Stamps, Rools, Scroles and Fancy Ornaments to suit all tastes.

Having worked in all the principal cities of the Union, and from our long experience in the business, feel safe in promising work equal in durability and neatness to any that can be done in this or other cities.

Albums, Souvenirs, Music Books, &c., bound with gilt edge and extra gilt; Scrap Books, Portfolios, &c., bound in the neatest manner; fancy work of all kinds, such as Jewelry Boxes, Pocket Books, Cigar Cases, Screens, &c., done in a style not to be surpassed. Old books neatly re-bound, at the shortest notice.

Books belonging to Colleges, Bookstores, Libraries, and public institutions generally, bound and re-bound neatly, at a fair deduction from our general prices. Persons having a library, and wishing it bound in a uniform style, will find it to their advantage to give us a call.

PERIODICALS.—Arrangements have been made to supply all numbers missing, in any volume sent to us to be bound, such as Graham's Magazine, Godey's Ladies' Book, Ladies' Companion, &c. All orders will be punctually attended to.

Persons having work, and desire it being sent for, will please address a note through the Post-office, where we shall be happy to call for it.

N. B. SPECIMENS OF OUR WORK CAN BE SEEN AT OUR PLACE OF BUSINESS.

BUCK'S PATENT COOKING-STOVE.

The subscribers have now on hand an assortment of the above celebrated Cooking Stoves, and feel confident they can supply persons wishing to buy Cooking Stoves, at wholesale or retail, with the most perfect article in the Western Country. It possessed all the advantages of any other Stove now in use, with at least one-third more oven, which is heated with perfect uniformity in every part. There are flues in the oven so constructed as to carry off the steam arising from the cooking of various kinds of meats, into the pipe, thereby preventing the mixture of flavors. The economy, convenience and despatch in all the operations of cooking, render this Stove decidedly the most preferable to any other ever offered to the public.

This celebrated Stove stands unrivalled before the world!

We, the undersigned, have each now in use one of Buck's Patent Cooking Stoves, and we confidently recommend them to our friends and the public generally, as superior in all the operations of cooking, to any we have ever tried or seen used. It has a decided advantage over all others with which we are acquainted in the size of the oven, which is so constructed as to afford a horizontal surface equal to that of the whole body and hearth of the stove. It bakes equally well in the front and back part, and is not inferior in any respect to a brick oven. With an excellent draught, it consumes a very small amount of fuel.
